APRIL 1 JOKE STIRS WRATH OF FOREST SERVICE

A letter from the forest service at Washington, D. C., bearing the glad tidings that the senate had at last realized that government departments and bureaus were losing valuable men because of inadequate salaries, was widely circulated at the local forest offices yesterday. The letter stated that the senate had decided that a bonus increase of $240 a year was not sufficient and had raised the "ante" to $600 a year.

The letter was a signal for general jubilation at the local forest service offices until the final sentence was read which reminded the readers that yesterday was April 1.

Chief of Maintenance C. M. Gwin wrote the letter and according to word received today, his life and health have been endangered since the letter was circulated.

COSTLY GOWNS

Much has been said on the subject of the psychology of dress on the screen and the part clothes play in the indication of character, but to my mind, Clara Kimball Young, in "The Forbidden Woman," enjoys the distinction of being the best dressed woman on the American stage or screen. I base this claim to supremacy upon magnificence of attire and materials, effective and unusual design, picturesque and actual valuation—for, whisper it low, girls, I happen to know that Miss Young's wardrobe for "The Forbidden Woman" alone, cost upwards of $24,000. The role of Diane Sorel, the charming young French actress, which Miss Young enacts, calls for nineteen different costumes, and the wardrobe which Miss Young has furnished for this picture includes a full length sable coat, nine evening dresses, four afternoon frocks, two dinner gowns, enough lingerie to last the average woman a lifetime, with shoes, stockings, gloves, jewelry, hats, fans and such accessories galore. They come very high, girls, but it certainly is a wonderful show. Coming to the Utah Sunday.

DENDROGRAPH ARRIVES FOR LOCAL FOREST SERVICE

A dendrograph has been acquired by the research laboratory of the local forestry service for the purpose of measuring the growth of trees. The apparatus, which is extremely delicate, resembles a life preserver made of blocks of cork. This is fastened around the bole of the tree, provisions having been made for expansion as the tree grows.

When spring starts the tree on which the apparatus is affixed, to grow, a revolving drum, operated by clock work, keeps a daily record of the extent of the tree's growth. The machine has not been installed in Ogden as yet but a location has been chosen, it is reported, and a record of the rate of growth of various species of Ogden trees, together with a record of the growth of each specie under various conditions, will be taken, it is stated.

WIND WRECKS BARN AND GARAGES AND UPROOTS TREES

In addition to wrecking barns, garages, tearing trees up from the earth and other damage, a high wind in the La Sal forest recently redecorated the La Sal range of mountains from a snowy white to a reddish brown, according to Supervisor Charles De Moisey. The high winds carried red sand from the surrounding desert to the mountains where the sands were deposited on the surface of the snow on the mountain peaks. For several days the mountain presented an unusual appearance until later snows again coated them with a blanket of white.
